The Egg And High-Temperature

Star Reporter On Hot Assignment Sizzles; Egg? It Just Fizzles

By SALLY ADAMS
Star Staff Writer

So you think it is hot enough to fry eggs on the sidewalk...

I took my two eggs, my spatula and a thermometer and proceeded to 13th and O, reputedly the hottest place in town. The afternoon sun was beating down. The pavement scorched my feet, shoes and all. The thermometer, lying on the sidewalk, quickly soared above the 125 degree mark, out of sight. This was the place to fry eggs. I cracked one egg and dropped it on my curbstone fryingpan. It soon spread over the pavement. And then it just lay there. It didn't bubble. It didn't sizzle. It just lay there. Then I spied a near-by manhole cover. Frying pans are iron. Manhole covers are iron. Eggs should fry on manhole covers. So I repeated the process. I cracked the second egg and dropped it on the cover. This time it didn't run. It looked like an egg about to fry. Success?

I peered intently at my egg. My feet burned. My face dripped. The egg? It just lay there. It didn't bubble. It didn't sizzle. After five minutes, it still just lay there. I reached a hasty (?) conclusion that it wasn't hot enough to fry eggs. But it was hot enough to fry people.

Damage Showing As Heat Remains

Report Reveals Broken Bow's 116 Topped Nation And Killed Livestock

Anyone looking for good news can quit right here. Nebraska staggered through its second day of hazy-like temperatures while reports of the first day's heat toll were counted—and the weather forecaster offered more of the same for Tuesday.

Late reports showed that the highest official temperature Sunday in the state—and the nation—was 116 at Broken Bow. The heat there killed a number of farm animals.

Monday's highs, while slightly below the previous day, were all but one over 100 degrees. Chadron had the top with 110, followed by Imperial, 108; North Platte, 107; and 106 at both Grand Island and Lexington. Lincoln's high was 102.

The forecast for Tuesday offered northwest Nebraska residents a little relief, with highs in the 90s, but the rest of the state will be generally fair with 100 to 110 highs.

Broken Bow's two rendering plants reported Monday the 116-degree heat had killed a large number of chickens and turkeys and a few hogs. At one farm there were so many dead chickens one truck couldn't haul them all away.

A check of Lincoln poultrymen Monday showed no reported losses of poultry because of the heat. With adequate shade and water, poultry should survive the present Lincoln heat wave, a poultryman said.

Agricultural observers at Burwell said some of the corn is burning and kernels turning white, but since the corn had not yet tasseled the damage was minimized.

Business at the Central Nebraska Commission Co., has been generally normal, but Jack Nelson, a company spokesman, said if the weather continues hot some stockmen may sell cattle they would otherwise keep.

Pastures are burning badly and unless rain comes soon, the second cutting of hay may be way short.

Baseball games were played both afternoon and evening despite some discussion of the wisdom of playing them in the heat. There were no reports of heat prostrations in the area.

In nearby Callaway Postmaster Curt Beniger said seven or eight householders reported their thermometers reached up to 118 degrees, but there was no indication that the temperature had reached 120 degrees as had been reported.

Broken Bow has an ample water supply and there has been no talk of restrictions although the mercury has been over 95 degrees for 11 of the last 12 days and above 100 degrees for six of those days.

The wheat crop was ripe enough before the heat wave struck so that there apparently has been no appreciable effect on the quality although in other areas, the heat has resulted in excessive dryness and some shriveling.

As of June 30 Custer County was far short of its normal rainfall for the year. There had been 6.43 inches of rain up to that time, compared with a normal of 11.66. The last rain in Broken Bow was .67 of an inch June 24.

The humidity was a slim 10 per cent at Broken Bow, compared with 28 to 32 in Omaha, but Meteorologist E. F. Stapovich in Omaha said the difference between Broken Bow's 116 and Omaha's 107 Sunday would be just about balance off the difference in humidity.

It narrowed down to the fact that it was hot just about anywhere in Nebraska.

State Corn Is Still OK—Anderson

A. E. Anderson, state-federal agricultural statistician, doubts that the hot weather has done irreparable damage due to excessive heat and lack of moisture.

"But it is getting close to the critical period," he commented. The heat is causing the corn leaves to roll—nature's way of limiting the exposed area and holding loss of moisture through transpiration to a minimum.

There is also an occasional "white cap." This is due to the fact the corn plant cannot bring moisture from the ground fast enough to supply the top leaves, so they burn.

An occasional tassel is showing up, however, and the tasseling period is when corn can suffer irreparable damage due to excessive heat and lack of moisture. This weather is particularly hard on pastures and alfalfa, Anderson added.

Crash Kills Omaha Man

OMAHA (AP) — Warren Huskins, 21, Omaha, was fatally injured in a two-car collision here Monday afternoon. He was dead of head injuries when received at a hospital. He was the 148th traffic victim of the year, compared to 134 last year.

The death ended Omaha's current string of traffic deaths—free days at 99. Police said cars driven by Huskins and Mrs. Helen Haynes Omaha, collided at an intersection. Mrs. Haynes, 53, suffered face cuts.

Billions More For Highways Urged

Nixon, Speaking For President, Proposes To Governors A Federal-State Alliance In A 'Grand Plan' Of Road Development For U.S.

BOLTON LANDING, N. Y. (AP)—President Eisenhower called by proxy Monday night for billions more of highway construction to meet defense needs of atomic war and of a possible population of 200 million by 1970.

Through Vice President Nixon, the President proposed to the annual governors conference a federal-state alliance in a "grand plan" of road development.

He said 50 billion dollars over the years will be only a good start toward meeting requirements of a 200 million population. But he didn't come right out and propose spending that amount.

In the international field, the chief executive declared that in times of crises we must maintain "a military dike on our defense perimeter."

And, sketching in broad terms the American philosophy of government, he said it represents "the middle road between nihilistic chaos and enslaved regimentation."

Eisenhower cancelled a personal appearance at the Governors' Conference because of the death of a sister-in-law. Mrs. Milton Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon took his place for a prepared address using the chief executive's notes.

The highway plan was laid before state governors already sniping at a new 900 million dollar highway aid law on grounds it goes against their own demands. The plan would require the federal government to abandon gasoline and car taxes and let the states use them to finance roads on their own.

Cries of "appeasement" and "deal" rang out at the conference Monday against the new law.

Eisenhower bore down on highway improvements as one of the essential home front jobs that must be done to "further the purposes of America."

The over-riding purposes, he said, are the building of a co-operative peace, and the strengthening of America and her friends. But he said they must have an economic base, minus any "blueprint for a regimented economy."

Eisenhower said that on the bright side of the picture for the future are:

Technical revolution through atomic power.

A possible population of 200 million in the next 16 years.

But on the dark side, he said, are:

A shortage of 300,000 grade school classrooms and 813,000 hospital beds.

An annual increase of 250,000 disabled persons requiring vocational rehabilitation.

Dislocations in the economy requiring "undesirable government intervention—from subsidies to outright seizure and control in the recent past."

A transportation system in many respects the world's best but far from the best America can provide "in an era when defensive and productive strength require the absolute best."

All these require some federal-state co-operation, Eisenhower said, and transportation must have top priority in planning.

Rug Used To Snuff Blaze

A quick witted neighbor beat a fire out with a rug Monday evening at rear of the J. P. Smith home at 2418 Y, where several children had set fire to the roof of a doll house with matches.

Firemen arrived on the scene to douse what flames remained after the neighbor's action.

Gee, Just Like Playing With Blocks

London Bridge wasn't falling down at 2713 No. 48th, but two children, ages 5 and 6, were trying to make a building fall.

Police reported that the children loosened 20 brick tile blocks from the building. A harried father of the two volunteered to pay for the damage, estimated at $25.

Deep Concern Felt Over Events In Indochina

... Previous Decision To Stay Away From Geneva Stands

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles left by plane for Paris Monday in a surprise move which he said demonstrates "the deep concern" he feels over developments in Indochina and Europe.

Dulles expressed hope that conference scheduled with Mendes-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden Tuesday would assure "coordinated action" by the three governments.

The secretary emphasized that his flying visit to Paris in no way means he has changed his previous decision to stay away from the Geneva Far East peace conference where Indochina truce talks are nearing a show-down stage.

Dulles left aboard a four-engined Air Force plane, less than three hours after the State Department disclosed that, in answer to an urgent French invitation, he had agreed to talk with Mendes-France and Eden at meetings Tuesday afternoon and evening. The White House said President Eisenhower approved the trip.

In a statement at the airport, Dulles served notice that the United States might take an attitude different from that of France in any truce aimed at settling the Indochina war.

"The United States itself is not a belligerent in Indochina," he said, "and it is not clear that the interests which we hold in common with France and Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia will necessarily be best served by identical action in all respects."

Without prejudice "Therefore, my trip to Paris is not prejudicial to the position previously expressed that neither I nor Undersecretary Smith have at the present time any plans for going to Geneva where the United States is presently maintaining contacts with developments through Ambassador A. Alexis Johnson and his associates."

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet, who joined British Ambassador Sir Roger Makin in bidding goodbye to Dulles at the airport, made it plain France continues to hope Dulles can be persuaded to go on to Geneva after finishing his Paris talks.

"I hope so, I hope so," Bonnet said when asked about this. But, he added: "You heard him—he made no promises, but one has hopes."

Dulles, in emphasizing the need for American-British-French unity, said his Paris visit shows, "I wish to leave no stone unturned in seeking to find the course which will best serve the traditional friendship and cooperation of France and the United States."

Shows U. S. Concern "This trip will demonstrate anew the deep concern which the United States takes in developments in both Indochina and Europe and our earnest desire to insure such coordinated action by France, Great Britain and the United States as will best promote the attainment of those goals which we share together and with free nations generally."

Dulles noted the bitter Indochina conflict has imposed on France and the Indochina states "a special set of primary interests" since they have been contributing their manpower in the drive there to block Communism.

Just before boarding his plane, Dulles declined to say how long he plans to stay in Paris. "I have no plan," he said firmly when asked by reporters.

Other officials reported the secretary tentatively has arranged to stay three or four days in the French capital, discussing Indochina truce prospects, the deadlocked European army project and West Germany's desire to have its full sovereignty restored.

EDEN, CHOU SET GENEVA PARLEYS BACK IN GEAR

GENEVA (AP)—Britain's Foreign Secretary Eden and Red China's Premier Chou En-lai flew back to Geneva Monday to throw into high gear once again the East-West negotiations for peace in Indochina.

Western efforts were stepped up to give full power to French Premier Pierre Mendes-France under the eight day deadline he has set for a settlement or resignation of his government.

The whole conference process Monday shifted to a series of bi-national meetings between leaders of the various delegations, with Mendes-France filling the heaviest schedule.

8-Day Limit

The French premier, who has staked his immediate political future on ending the Indochinese conflict by July 20, told a succession of visitors that he means what he has said—that he will step out of office and recommend a greatly increased French war effort unless the Communists agree to an "honorable" armistice in the eight-day time limit he has set himself.

French officials continued to stress the importance of getting a more authoritative American representation here. They expressed the hope that Dulles or Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith would take charge of the delegation.

Review Position Eden went almost directly from the airport to a luncheon with Mendes-France. There, according to a British statement, "in the course of a long and cordial conversation they reviewed the whole position reached by the Geneva conference."

Chou, smiling broadly, stepped from a Soviet airforce plane in mid-afternoon and expressed his belief that "with a conciliatory spirit for seeking peace on the part of all the sides concerned, the Geneva conference can speedily accomplish its great task of restoring peace in Indochina."

Liberty Oil Drilling Progresses

Drillers for the AirDry Drilling Co. of Arkansas City, Kan., neared the 60-foot mark Monday on the F. H. Schultze farm near Liberty where they are attempting to locate oil. The "spudder" type rig had been shut down over the week end awaiting arrival of surface pipe. Drilling began last Friday. Schultze said the drillers will soon be below the level of surface water and will seal the 12-inch surface pipe before continuing with 10-inch granite. Schultze has 30,000 acres under lease in the Liberty-Barnston and Pickrell areas. (Star Staff Photo.)

Kingsley Dam Storage Only Source For Platte Irrigation

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

Were it not for the Kingsley storage reservoir built in connection with development of public power, practically all irrigation east of Bridgeport in the Platte valley would be closed down, Dan S. Jones, Jr., chief of the bureau of water-power and irrigation said Monday.

Flow of the North Platte river last Saturday was the lowest on record, he said. Number of canals closed is the greatest the state has experienced since 1940. Jones was unable to estimate the number of acres the bureau has been forced to deny water during the present heat wave.

The inflow of water at the Kingsley reservoir is 94 second feet and the outflow 4,000 feet. Tri-county Public Power district is using 1,750 feet daily for generating power and the water then released to contracting districts for irrigation.

This year, Jones said, the canals east of North Platte commenced using water on June 27 and by July 9 had used 12,500 acre feet and the daily use was 2,030. At the present rate of consumption unless rains reduce use, he said the 100,000 acre feet which canals have contracted will be exhausted by Aug. 10.

The flow at Lewellen, check point for the Kingsley reservoir, Jones said, is only 94 second feet as compared with 156 in 1934. The daily average flow at Bridgeport over the 10 year period, 1942-51 was 600 second feet as compared with 950 during the period 1942-51.

3 Billion In Aid Is Okayed

Plan Which Might Have
Denied Help To France
And Italy Abandoned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee abandoned Monday a plan which might have deprived France and Italy of all foreign aid at the end of the year, and then approved a $3,100,000,000 foreign aid program for the next 12 months.

Chairman Wiley (R-Wis) announced the committee had voted 8-5 to accept virtually unchanged the House-approved language of a far less drastic provision.

Administration Change

The committee also voted, 7-6, Wiley said, to approve an amendment by Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) which would hand over the foreign aid program to the Defense and State Departments on June 30, 1955. But Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.H.), insisted the amendment is not necessarily a vote to end foreign aid as of that date.

Smith had presided as acting chairman of the committee at most of its work in revising the House bill pending the return to Washington of Wiley Monday.

Softened By Request

The amendment affecting France and Italy, two of America's major allies, was softened after it was reported that the administration requested such action.

In the tentatively approved by the Senate group over the weekend, the amendment would have cut off American military and economic assistance to the two countries on Dec. 31 unless by that time they had joined the European Defense Community or an acceptable substitute defense setup.

The House version, known as the Richards amendment, would deny to France and Italy a share of 1954 or 1955 foreign aid funds if they failed to ratify the EDC pact, but would not bar them from previously appropriated funds. A good deal of the goods purchased with this money is just entering the foreign aid pipeline.

Urged By Dulles

Wiley said the tough ultimatum to the two allies was voted down at the urging of Secretary of State Dulles and Walter Bedell Smith, deputy undersecretary, who came to Capitol Hill for a last minute huddle with the committee before Dulles left for new diplomatic talks in Paris.

Wiley said Dulles had indicated he "preferred" the milder House version.

Sen. Smith said Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme Allied commander in Europe, also had sent word that he considered the Senate amendment "very dangerous."

Jane Withers Wins Tearful, But Profitable Divorce From Oilman

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Jane Withers, the former child actress won a divorce and a million dollar property settlement Monday on testimony her Texas oilman husband "drank and gambled excessively."

The 28-year-old Miss Withers, occasionally breaking into tears, said of her life with William P. Moss Jr., 33:

"He often embarrassed me in public. Once, in a Midland, Tex., night club, he threw his shoes on the dance floor. Then he told me he didn't love me, and that was the end."

Superior Judge Allen T. Lynch approved a property settlement which provides for: $1,000 a month alimony and support for the couple's three children; a $100,000 trust fund, guaranteed by a $100,000 insurance policy; a $24,000 college education insurance policy for the children; half of community property, including oil lands valued at about $500,000.

Miss Withers was granted custody of the children.

The couple married in 1947 and separated April 15, 1953.

Alabama's Law Chief Is Indicted

Vote Fraud Involved;
Lunacy Action Filed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—St. Garrett, whose duties as attorney general make him Alabama's chief law enforcement officer, was arrested here Monday on a vote fraud indictment.

A lunacy proceeding was filed against Garrett a short time after he posted $1,000 bond on the vote fraud charge.

Garrett, 41-year-old member of a family long prominent in state politics, asserted his complete innocence in a good-humored talk with newsmen while he posed for pictures at the sheriff's office.

Asserts Innocence

Garrett and two other men were indicted June 30 on charges of altering 600 votes in Jefferson (Birmingham) County in the June 1 Democratic primary to nominate Garrett's successor.

Albert L. Patterson of Phenix City, who won the nomination against the opposition of Garrett, was the victim of a gang-style slaying there June 18, a few days before Patterson was scheduled to appear as a witness in the vote fraud inquiry here.

Psychiatric Treatment

Garrett directed the Phenix City slaying inquiry for a time, but left the state for psychiatric treatment in a Galveston, Tex., hospital on June 23. He came here from Galveston to submit to arrest.

Solicitor (prosecutor) Emmett Perry of Jefferson filed the lunacy proceeding against Garrett in Circuit Court here. The case was set for hearing July 21.

Garrett said he would take his wife and two small children on a brief vacation "out of this state" and return for trial. He declined to discuss the lunacy action.

Weather Man's House Reported 'Weather Wise'

OMAHA (AP)—E. F. Stapowich, head of the Omaha weather bureau, keeps cool in his "weather wise" house when the mercury climbs.

Stapowich designed his home, which he calls "Weathering Heights," to withstand weather extremes. It has wide overhanging eaves to keep out the sun and sits at an angle to catch prevailing winds from the south-east.

An unusual feature is an 18-inch concrete tube, which runs underground to bring cool air into the basement. During Sunday's 107-degree heat this tube kept the Stapowich basement at a steady 82. And when the attic fan was turned on at night to pull out the hot air "it go so cold my wife had to put a blanket over her feet," Stapowich said.

Kerr's Primary Foe Withdraws

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Roy J. Turner, who ran second in the Oklahoma Democratic U.S. Senate primary last Tuesday, is withdrawing from the July 27 runoff, his headquarters announced Monday night.

Turner trailed Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) by 33,302 votes in the primary. Kerr was 9,780 votes short of a majority because of votes polled by seven other candidates in the race.

The brief announcement was made by Charles Brill, Turner's publicity manager. Turner, former Oklahoma governor, planned to make a statement later.

Marine, Navy Bands Latest To Hear Sour Note Of Probe-Hungry Senate

WASHINGTON (INS)—Sen. John J. Williams struck a sour note in the Senate Monday by complaining that the Marine and Navy bands, are being "commercialized" by promoters other than the De la Warrs.

The Delaware Republican called for an immediate end to what he called the "highly questionable" practice of local communities picking up the tab for concerts for which band members receive extra money above and beyond their military pay and allowances.

Subsequently, the Marine Corps issued a statement declaring that the practice of allowing extra pay for the bandmen "was required in order to insure the enlistment and retention of musicians of outstanding ability."

The Marine Corps spokesman said the practice is "legal" and the concerts are "helpful to recruiting."

Williams charged, in effect, that Marine Band Leader Lt. Col. William F. H. Santelmann is doing as well financially as any "name" band leader in civvies.

He reported that in 1951, Santelmann was paid $9,706.45 for a nine-week tour. Williams said he didn't have the comparable figures for 1952, but he said "the net profit was about 20 per cent higher than in 1951."

The lawmaker also indicated that he felt it was definitely not in the groove for the bands to hire civilian promoters to book them for tours around the country.

Hit-Run Driver Still At Large

OMAHA (AP)—Police were making a second attempt Monday to locate the hit-and-run car which struck a 3-year-old girl here Sunday night.

The girl, Christine Logelin, daughter of S-Sgt. Louis R. Smith, was in satisfactory condition at an Omaha hospital with a possible concussion and abrasions.

The first attempt to locate the hit-run automobile failed when county officials reported that the license number witnesses said the car bore had not been issued.

Police Monday requested witnesses and rescrumpled car numbers.

Three Nebraskans Help Save Life Of Minnesota Man

Three Nebraskans can be credited with helping save the life of a young Minnesota man. Clare West of 321 So. 28th, Maurice Baker of 1027 So. 23rd, and Dale Wild of Ashland put their Red Cross skills to work to save Bernard Aune, 18, of Clitherall, Minn., a near-drowning victim.

The men were vacationing at Hull's Landing, Minn. Aune and a companion had gone wading in the lake. Aune, who was unable to swim, stepped off a steep drop-off and sank. His companion went for help.

Rufus Hull of Hull's Landing answered the call and summoned West who had a boat. The two men saw Aune's body about 12 feet down in the water. Hull dived in and brought Aune to the surface.

Meanwhile, Baker and West, who had been sitting on the dock, dived in and swam out to the boat. The four men immediately began administering artificial respiration.

After about 45 minutes Aune had revived and was talking. He had been under water about seven minutes.

Dr. Hom of Battle Lake was summoned. He said the men had worked effectively and it was a fine example of team work and lifesaving. All four of the men had had Red Cross training.

Curtis Picks Fenton As Lincoln Chairman

Joe Fenton has been named as chairman of the Lincoln "Curtis for Senate" committee. Dean Kratz, the congressman's state campaign manager, announced.

3 Billion In Aid Is Okayed

Plan Which Might Have
Denied Help To France
And Italy Abandoned

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee abandoned Monday a plan which might have deprived France and Italy of all foreign aid at the end of the year, and then approved a $3,100,000,000 foreign aid program for the next 12 months.

Chairman Wiley (R-Wis.) announced the committee had voted 8-5 to accept virtually unchanged the House-approved language of a far less drastic provision.

Administration Change
The committee also voted, 7-6, Wiley said, to approve an amendment by Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) which would hand over the foreign aid program to the Defense and State Departments on June 30, 1955. But Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), insisted the amendment is not necessarily a vote to end foreign aid as of that date.

Smith had presided as acting chairman of the committee at most of its work in revising the House bill pending the return to Washington of Wiley Monday.

Softened By Request
The amendment affecting France and Italy, two of America's major allies, was softened after it was reported that the administration requested such action.

In the form tentatively approved by the Senate group over the weekend, the amendment would have cut off American military and economic assistance to the two countries on Dec. 31 unless by that time they had joined the European Defense Community or an acceptable substitute defense setup.

The House version, known as the Richards amendment, would deny to France and Italy a share of 1954 or 1955 foreign aid funds if they failed to ratify the EDC pact, but would not bar them from previously appropriated funds. A good deal of the goods purchased with this money is just entering the foreign aid pipeline.

Urged By Dulles
Wiley said the tough ultimatum to the two allies was voted down at the urging of Secretary of State Dulles and Walter Bedell Smith, deputy undersecretary, who came to Capitol Hill for a last minute huddle with the committee before Dulles left for new diplomatic talks in Paris.

Wiley said Dulles had indicated he "preferred" the milder House version.

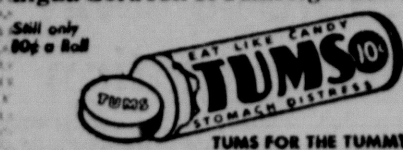

Sen. Smith said Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme Allied commander in Europe, also had sent word that he considered the Senate amendment "very dangerous."

Jane Withers Wins Divorce

Jane Withers Wins Divorce, But Profitable Divorce From Oilman

SANTA MONICA, Calif. —Jane Withers, the former child actress, won a divorce and a million dollar property settlement Monday on testimony her Texas oilman husband "drank and gambled excessively."

The 28-year-old Miss Withers, occasionally breaking into tears, said of her life with William P. Moss Jr., 33:

"He often embarrassed me in public. Once, in a Midland, Tex., night club, he threw his shoes on the dance floor. Then he told me he didn't love me, and that was the end."

Superior Judge Allen T. Lynch approved a property settlement which provides for: $1,000 a month alimony and support for the couple's three children; a $100,000 trust fund, guaranteed by a $100,000 insurance policy; a $24,000 college education insurance policy for the children; half of community property, including oil lands valued at about $500,000.

Miss Withers was granted custody of the children. The couple married in 1947 and separated April 15, 1953.

Plans Made For State Legion Meet

Plans are being completed for the annual state convention of the American Legion and auxiliary at Omaha, Aug. 1, 2 and 3.

The three-day event opens with a joint session Sunday morning, Aug. 1, with Gov. Robert Crosby scheduled to speak at the annual memorial service. This session will be at the Fontenelle Hotel.

In the afternoon the Legion delegates move to the Paxton Hotel for their first separate session. The auxiliary will continue to meet at the Fontenelle.

Annual Parade
The annual parade will be at noon, Monday, Aug. 2. There will be a barbecue in the evening following the parade.

Both groups hold their closing business sessions on Tuesday. Announced candidates for the state commander's post in the Nebraska Legion this year are George B. Hastings, Grant, an attorney and World War I veteran; and William Disch, Nebraska City, World War II veteran and now a vice commander.

Since election of Richard Marvel in 1946, the Nebraska Legion has chosen World War II men for commanders. The retiring commander is Clark O'Hanlon of Blair.

The legion this year will choose a senior vice commander from the state at large, in addition to the four area vice commanders customarily elected.

Mrs. Johnson Retiring
The retiring president of the Nebraska auxiliary is Mrs. Luther Johnson of Valley. Candidates for election to succeed her are Mrs. John Mekota, Crete, and Mrs. James J. Bobbitts, Oconto.

A feature of the auxiliary convention will be the delegates' banquet on Sunday night. Mrs. Harold Burdett, Brooklyn, N.Y., the national president, will be a guest.

Carroll Zimmerman, chief scientist at the Strategic Air Command, Offutt Field, will address the auxiliary on Monday, Aug. 2. On Tuesday, Mrs. Percy Lains of Fort Madison, Ia., national rehabilitation chairman for the auxiliary, will take part in the discussion of the rehabilitation program.

The national Legion convention is at Washington, D.C., early in September.

Alabama's Law Chief Is Indicted

Vote Fraud Involved;
Lunacy Action Filed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Si Garrett, whose duties as attorney general make him Alabama's chief law enforcement officer, was arrested here Monday on a vote fraud indictment.

A lunacy proceeding was filed against Garrett a short time after he posted $1,000 bond on the vote fraud charge.

Garrett, 41-year-old member of a family long prominent in state politics, asserted his complete innocence in a good-humored talk with newsmen while he posed for pictures at the sheriff's office.

Asserts Innocence
Garrett and two other men were indicted June 30 on charges of altering 600 votes in Jefferson (Birmingham) County in the June 1 Democratic primary to nominate Garrett's successor.

Albert L. Patterson of Phenix City, who won the nomination against the opposition of Garrett, was the victim of a gang-style slaying there June 18, a few days before Patterson was scheduled to appear as a witness in the vote fraud inquiry here.

Psychiatric Treatment
Garrett directed the Phenix City slaying inquiry for a time, but left the state for psychiatric treatment in a Galveston, Tex., hospital on June 23. He came here from Galveston to submit to arrest.

Solicitor (prosecutor) Emmett Perry of Jefferson filed the lunacy proceeding against Garrett in Circuit Court here. The case was set for hearing July 21.

Garrett said he would take his wife and two small children on a brief vacation "out of this state" and return for trial. He declined to discuss the lunacy action.

Weather Man's House Reported 'Weather Wise'

OMAHA (AP)—E. F. Stapovich, head of the Omaha weather bureau, keeps cool in his "weather wise" house when the mercury climbs.

Stapovich designed his home, which he calls "Weathering Heights," to withstand weather extremes. It has wide overhanging eaves to keep out the sun and sits at an angle to catch prevailing winds from the southeast.

An unusual feature is an 18-inch concrete tube, which runs underground to bring cool air into the basement. During Sunday's 107-degree heat this tube kept the Stapovich basement at a steady 82. And when the attic fan was turned on at night to pull out the hot air "it got so cold my wife had to put a blanket over her feet," Stapovich said.

Kerr's Primary Foe Withdraws

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Roy J. Turner, who ran second in the Oklahoma Democratic U.S. Senate primary last Tuesday, is withdrawing from the July 27 runoff, his headquarters announced Monday night.

Turner trailed Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) by 33,302 votes in the primary. Kerr was 9,780 votes short of a majority because of votes polled by seven other candidates in the race.

The brief announcement was made by Charles Brill, Turner's publicity manager. Turner, former Oklahoma governor, planned to make a statement later.

Marine, Navy Bands Latest To Hear Sour Note Of Probe-Hungry Senate

WASHINGTON (INS)—Sen. John J. Williams struck a sour note in the Senate Monday by complaining that the Marine and Navy bands are being "commercialized" by promoters other than the government.

The Delaware Republican called for an immediate end to what he called the "highly questionable" practice of local communities picking up the tab for concerts for which band members receive extra money above and beyond their military pay and allowances.

Subsequently, the Marine Corps issued a statement declaring that the practice of allowing extra pay for the bandmen "was required in order to insure the enlistment and retention of musicians of outstanding ability."

The Marine Corps spokesman said the practice is "legal" and the concerts are "helpful to recruiting."

Williams charged, in effect, that Marine Band Leader Lt. Col. William F. H. Santelmann is doing as well financially as any "name" band leader in civvies.

He reported that in 1951, Santelmann was paid $6,706.45 for a nine-week tour. Williams said he didn't have the comparable figures for 1952, but he said "the net profit was about 20 per cent higher than in 1951."

The lawmaker also indicated that he felt it was definitely not in the groove for the bands to hire civilian promoters to book them for tours around the country.

Three Nebraskans Help Save Life Of Minnesota Man

Three Nebraskans can be credited with helping save the life of a young Minnesota man.

Clare West of 321 So. 28th, Maurice Baker of 1027 So. 23rd, and Dale Wild of Ashland put their Red Cross skills to work to save Bernard Aune, 18, of Clitherall, Minn., a near-drowning victim.

The men were vacationing at Hull's Landing, Minn. Aune and a companion had gone wading in the lake, Aune, who was unable to swim, stepped off a steep drop-off and sank. His companion went for help.

Rufus Hull of Hull's Landing answered the call and summoned West who had a boat. The two men saw Aune's body about 12 feet down in the water. Hull dived in and brought Aune to the surface.

Meanwhile, Baker and West, who had been sitting on the dock, dived in and swam out to the boat. The four men immediately began administering artificial respiration.

After about 45 minutes Aune had revived and was talking. He had been under water about seven minutes.

Dr. Horn of Battle Lake was summoned. He said the men had worked effectively and it was a fine example of team work and lifesaving. All four of the men had had Red Cross training.

In this crumpled sedan Richard Zimmerman, 18, Pickrell, died instantly early Monday morning six and one-half miles northeast of Beatrice. Sheriff Ned Maxwell said the youth probably fell asleep at the wheel just before his car hit a bridge abutment on a country road. The car hurtled off the bridge and into a deep gully where it lay unnoticed until seven hours later. (Star Staff Photo)

"AT THE CROSSROADS OF LINCOLN"

Lincoln Sorrows

All of Lincoln sensed a deep personal loss Monday when it learned that Mrs. Hazel Snell Putney had died.

Everyone lost a valued friend — and the community at large, one of its outstanding citizens—for Mrs. Putney was a lover of human kind and a woman named by destiny for that most admirable of all missions—human service.

Throughout her life, all of it in the Lincoln community, she quietly but effectively bent her considerable abilities and her years of energy to the betterment of social conditions, clearing the way for greater opportunity and loftier living for those she served. And she served everyone—not just a few. Best of all she loved her work as the community loved and revered her.

Such people are set apart and they are the ones who through the ages have held up the light and guided the way while human-kind slowly and painfully feels its way upward toward more enlightened more elevated living. Without them there would be no soft, helping hands, nor guides in the darkness, and life would be dismal indeed. When one speaks of greatness there are none so great as those who make life better for their fellow men.

Mrs. Putney felt the compulsion for social service from the beginning. She prepared herself with youthful study in the fields of social welfare and philanthropy. She spent a year at Hull House and felt the deep inspiration from association with the great Jane Addams.

In her riper years her knowledge and earnestness yielded rich fruits in a continual outpouring of civic and human service. It is difficult to enumerate the benefits from such a life. But a few are her efforts that helped to bring Lincoln's first community center, later the Southwest community center, and that great lay order we know as the Gray Ladies—the women of compassion and love who do so much in our hospitals.

The world has always sorrowed over the passing of individuals who do so much for others and ask only the opportunity to continue to do so. And we all feel that way about Mrs. Putney.

Exit The Barn

An item in the state press caught our eye the other day, bringing to mind again a somewhat startling observation from a recent conversation with a business friend. The news story concerned a farm sale—not an ordinary farm sale in the usual sense of the word, but one in which "antiquity ruled the setting."

The land had been in the family for nearly 80 years. The soil was good and well tended; every piece of machinery available for care of the land and livestock was acquired. The proper equipment and seed plus favorable weather conditions and hard work all had added up to decades of prosperity. In time the productive acres passed on to the sons of the family who for a time carried on their father's work on the land. But there the family ties ran out. Both sons eventually died leaving no families of their own, and the home and farm land fell into neglect. Where the labors of man cease, nature moves in silently, slowly, but with deadly certainty

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

LOS ANGELES—High up on the crest of a towering hill overlooking an impressive stretch of the Pacific — its ceaseless surf lapping at the sands below—is a building constructed of glass—the work of the controversial architect, Lloyd Wright. Thousands visit it weekly. It is a restful spot and when all of the plans for it have been completed, we are sure it will be exceedingly beautiful.

There are innumerable tales associated with this particular coastal region, all of which you are expected to swallow without making a face. Here in the days of Spanish domination, we were told, pirate hands took refuge in the hidden coves to sally forth in their attacks upon shipping and then to return to take count of ill-gotten gain. We suspect there is more imagination than truth in many of these stories. But they do provide a rich background for a place where men and women come to meditate and to pray and where stalwart males and their beautiful brides exchange marriage vows. You can look out to sea upon ships seemingly motionless in the vastness of a mighty ocean. The fog rolls in to curtain off the horizons. You can look back to the mountains standing sentinel for eternity. Or you can conjure in your mind the exotic brilliance of sub-tropical plantings for which initial steps are now being taken. They call it "Wayfarers Chapel." The name is most fitting.

Actually the chapel has just been started. Adjoining it will be a 59-foot bell tower built of native white sandstone, glistening in the clear sunlight. A cloister will connect the tower with a reception hall and library. The cloistered garden as presently planned will include biblical trees and flowers, appropriate to a climate said to be similar to the Holy Land. Eventually it is hoped and planned that the entire hillside will be landscaped.

Back of the Wayfarers' Chapel is the hope to acquaint and to perpetuate the works and the life of Emanuel Swedenborg, famous Swedish scientist, philosopher and religious teacher who was born in Stockholm in 1688 and died in London in 1772, just four years before the American colonies sought their independence. Swedenborg, we are told, not only anticipated much which is now significant in modern science but his writings in the fields of philosophy and psychology established his right to a place among the world's great thinkers. Widely traveled, an accomplished linguist, an exceedingly competent craftsman, and an inventor, it was in shaping thought that Swedenborg left his greatest work. Well, in a crowded metropolis constantly changing, this development is one of the contrasts of a city of many contrasts. There is the good and the bad, the ugly and the beautiful.

We find many chances. It has been four years since we last visited here. Then heavy industry was just beginning to assert itself. Now it is fully rooted. We of the Midwest talk of decentralization in the belief it may bring plants to us from the older industrialized areas but the influx here from the eastern seaboard is startling. Hills which four years ago were grim and brown in their bareness have been transformed into solid residential sections, thousands upon thousands of homes. But more about that later. California simply would not be itself without a certain amount of "Bullifornia"—as Hyde Sweet describes it. But it seems to get results.

Violence Of Other Days

There is a lot to be said for loafing. It aids digestion, prevents ulcers and creates employment for others. Besides, it is fun.

Next New Year's Day, I'm going to make a resolution to loaf more. In fact, I've already put it down on the calendar under Jan. 1, 1955—"loaf." It is one of those little notes I write to remind myself of things, only this one should be easier to understand by then, because the stores will be closed that day and it couldn't possibly mean to bring home a loaf of bread.

The thing that brought the pleasures of loafing to mind was my over-enthusiasm for promptness. I was half an hour early to meet a man on a street corner downtown. Half an hour is a hard segment of time to deal with. If it had been two hours, I could have gone to a show. It it had been 45 minutes, I could have hunted up a soda fountain. But with half an hour, there is not much you can do but wait.

I added the support of my shoulders to the corner building, jammed my hands in my pockets, and waited. It had been so long since I had just loafed on a street corner, with nothing to do, that I had forgotten how much fun it can be. It makes you understand how the monkeys can be so happy in the zoos just watching the people pass by.

It reminded me, with a twinge of nostalgia, of how we used to drive downtown on a Saturday night, park relax in the car, and just enjoy as spectators the ebb and flow of humanity along the sidewalks. I wonder if they still do that in the small towns?

Waiting on the street corner, I

Gov. J. Bracken Lee of Utah is attempting to stir up his fellow governors against the federal income tax. He would have it repealed, look stock and barrel.

Utah's head man is pushing his campaign as a special side attraction at the current meeting of governors at Bolton Landing, N. Y. He has isolated the virus of socialism in that particular tax and is assuring his colleagues that if the host is disposed of the virus will die with it.

Gov. Lee, we fear, is embarked upon a crusade that will not lead to victory. Nor does it seem that his research into the science of both taxes and socialism has gone very deeply.

Varying forms of taxes are adopted to extract money from citizens in some approximate arrangement of fairness, and also with an eye to constitutional limitations. It is seldom the form that impairs the principle of private property but the size of the levy.

While Gov. Lee would deprive the federal government of one of its few ways, under the constitution, of staying alive, it is doubtful whether he or any of his fellow governors would go for an amendment that would turn the federalists loose on real and personal property which thus far is a right reserved for the states. But if the gates of revenue were slammed shut on federal government it would soon cease to exist and would therefore be an incompetent and impractical government. There would be little alternative to that other than quickly going socialistic by default.

United Fruit Suit Was Not On Spur Of Moment

WASHINGTON — The question of whether the Justice Department should bring a monopoly suit against the United Fruit Company during the Guatemalan revolt went all the way up to the cabinet before a decision was reached.

Inside fact is that the suit was begun a long time ago by Assistant Attorney General Graham Morison, and when Attorney General Brownell took over, United Fruit lawyers remarked: "This is some of that nonsense of the Democrats and should be tossed out immediately."

However, Eisenhower's new trustbust, Judge Stanley N. Barnes, decided differently. It took him about 30 minutes to decide that there was a definite case against United Fruit for its banana monopoly in Central America. When he took up the case with the new attorney general, however, Brownell was cautious.

"Talk to the United Fruit lawyers about it before you file suit," he advised. "Hear their side of the story first."

Brownell was advised by subordinates that it was not Justice Department policy to confer with offending parties when the government had an airtight case. Nevertheless, in deference to Brownell's instructions, intermittent conferences took place between United Fruit attorneys and the antitrust division for about a year.

This was what delayed action until about the time of the Guatemalan revolt. It was then that

Utah's head man is pushing his campaign as a special side attraction at the current meeting of governors at Bolton Landing, N. Y. He has isolated the virus of socialism in that particular tax and is assuring his colleagues that if the host is disposed of the virus will die with it.

Gov. Lee, we fear, is embarked upon a crusade that will not lead to victory. Nor does it seem that his research into the science of both taxes and socialism has gone very deeply.

Varying forms of taxes are adopted to extract money from citizens in some approximate arrangement of fairness, and also with an eye to constitutional limitations. It is seldom the form that impairs the principle of private property but the size of the levy.

While Gov. Lee would deprive the federal government of one of its few ways, under the constitution, of staying alive, it is doubtful whether he or any of his fellow governors would go for an amendment that would turn the federalists loose on real and personal property which thus far is a right reserved for the states. But if the gates of revenue were slammed shut on federal government it would soon cease to exist and would therefore be an incompetent and impractical government. There would be little alternative to that other than quickly going socialistic by default.

Garden Glances With The Moon

Dawn came this morning with July's waxing moon in the flexed, fiery and very barren sign, Sagittarius. About 30 minutes before midnight tonight, it will enter the movable, earthy, dry and semi-fruitful sign, Capricorn.

Thursday evening at 6:23 third lunar quarter will begin. Then July's moon waxes no more but begins this very moment to decrease in light and power. And the garden turns again to planting those things that produce their yield in the soil, as carrots, beets, etc.; also to transplanting iris that their roots may be many and their rhizomes healthy to store food and moisture for next year's bountiful bloom.

Friday morning at 7:16 the waning moon will enter the fixed, airy and barren sign, Aquarius. Then Sunday at 30 minutes past midday, it will enter the flexed, watery and fruitful sign, Pisces. So much for the moon's signs. Use them as you think best.

Our picture today gives you a glimpse of one of my favorite summer-blooming perennials. It is one of many colorful and aromatic herbs called "Monarda" after the Spanish physician and botanist, Mondardes (1493-1588). This one's blooms are a delicate rosy-pink and it is called "Crostway Pink." It was given me only last summer and blends beautifully with M. rubra which I've grown for years.

The leaves of all Monardas when crushed or even slightly brushed by hand emit a delightful fragrance resembling that of Citrus Bergamot, a small spiny tree with sour thin-skinned fruit grown in Europe for centuries for its essential oil and perfume,

Street-Corner Loafing Is For Ulcer Control

There is a lot to be said for loafing. It aids digestion, prevents ulcers and creates employment for others. Besides, it is fun.

Next New Year's Day, I'm going to make a resolution to loaf more. In fact, I've already put it down on the calendar under Jan. 1, 1955—"loaf." It is one of those little notes I write to remind myself of things, only this one should be easier to understand by then, because the stores will be closed that day and it couldn't possibly mean to bring home a loaf of bread.

The thing that brought the pleasures of loafing to mind was my over-enthusiasm for promptness. I was half an hour early to meet a man on a street corner downtown. Half an hour is a hard segment of time to deal with. If it had been two hours, I could have gone to a show. It it had been 45 minutes, I could have hunted up a soda fountain. But with half an hour, there is not much you can do but wait.

I added the support of my shoulders to the corner building, jammed my hands in my pockets, and waited. It had been so long since I had just loafed on a street corner, with nothing to do, that I had forgotten how much fun it can be. It makes you understand how the monkeys can be so happy in the zoos just watching the people pass by.

It reminded me, with a twinge of nostalgia, of how we used to drive downtown on a Saturday night, park relax in the car, and just enjoy as spectators the ebb and flow of humanity along the sidewalks. I wonder if they still do that in the small towns?

Waiting on the street corner, I

Lincoln Sorrows

All of Lincoln sensed a deep personal loss Monday when it learned that Mrs. Hazel Snell Putney had died.

Everyone lost a valued friend — and the community at large, one of its outstanding citizens—for Mrs. Putney was a lover of human kind and a woman named by destiny for that most admirable of all missions—human service.

Throughout her life, all of it in the Lincoln community, she quietly but effectively bent her considerable abilities and her years of energy to the betterment of social conditions, clearing the way for greater opportunity and loftier living for those she served. And she served everyone—not just a few. Best of all she loved her work as the community loved and revered her.

Such people are set apart and they are the ones who through the ages have held up the light and guided the way while human-kind slowly and painfully feels its way upward toward more enlightened more elevated living. Without them there would be no soft, helping hands, nor guides in the darkness, and life would be dismal indeed. When one speaks of greatness there are none so great as those who make life better for their fellow men.

Mrs. Putney felt the compulsion for social service from the beginning. She prepared herself with youthful study in the fields of social welfare and philanthropy. She spent a year at Hull House and felt the deep inspiration from association with the great Jane Addams.

In her riper years her knowledge and earnestness yielded rich fruits in a continual outpouring of civic and human service. It is difficult to enumerate the benefits from such a life. But a few are her efforts that helped to bring Lincoln's first community center, later the Southwest community center, and that great lay order we know as the Gray Ladies—the women of compassion and love who do so much in our hospitals.

The world has always sorrowed over the passing of individuals who do so much for others and ask only the opportunity to continue to do so. And we all feel that way about Mrs. Putney.

Exit The Barn

An item in the state press caught our eye the other day, bringing to mind again a somewhat startling observation from a recent conversation with a business friend. The news story concerned a farm sale—not an ordinary farm sale in the usual sense of the word, but one in which "antiquity ruled the setting."

The land had been in the family for nearly 80 years. The soil was good and well tended; every piece of machinery available for care of the land and livestock was acquired. The proper equipment and seed plus favorable weather conditions and hard work all had added up to decades of prosperity. In time the productive acres passed on to the sons of the family who for a time carried on their father's work on the land. But there the family ties ran out. Both sons eventually died leaving no families of their own, and the home and farm land fell into neglect. Where the labors of man cease, nature moves in silently, slowly, but with deadly certainty

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

LOS ANGELES—High up on the crest of a towering hill overlooking an impressive stretch of the Pacific — its ceaseless surf lapping at the sands below—is a building constructed of glass—the work of the controversial architect, Lloyd Wright. Thousands visit it weekly. It is a restful spot and when all of the plans for it have been completed, we are sure it will be exceedingly beautiful.

There are innumerable tales associated with this particular coastal region, all of which you are expected to swallow without making a face. Here in the days of Spanish domination, we were told, pirate bands took refuge in the hidden coves to sally forth in their attacks upon shipping and then to return to take count of ill-gotten gain. We suspect there is more

Violence Of Other Days

Imagination than truth in many of these stories. But they do provide a rich background for a place where men and women come to meditate and to pray and where stalwart males and their beautiful brides exchange marriage vows. You can look out to sea upon ships seemingly motionless in the vastness of a mighty ocean. The fogs roll in to curtain off the horizons. You can look back to the mountains standing sentinel for eternity. Or you can conjure in your mind the exotic brilliance of sub-tropical plantings for which initial steps are now being taken. They call it "Wayfarers Chapel." The name is most fitting.

Actually the chapel has just been started. Adjoining it will be a 59-foot bell tower built of native white sandstone, glistening in the clear sunlight. A cloister will connect the tower with a reception hall and library. The cloistered garden as presently planned will include biblical trees and flowers, appropriate to a climate said to be similar to the Holy Land. Eventually it is hoped and planned that the entire hillside will be landscaped.

Back of the Wayfarers' Chapel is the hope to acquaint and to perpetuate the works and the life of Emanuel Swedenborg, famous Swedish scientist, philosopher and religious teacher who was born in Stockholm in 1688 and died in London in 1772, just four years before the American colonies sought their independence. Swedenborg, we are told, not only anticipated much which is now significant in modern science but his writings in the fields of philosophy and psychology established his right to a place among the world's great thinkers. Widely traveled, an accomplished linguist, an exceedingly competent craftsman, and an inventor, it was in shaping thought that Swedenborg left his greatest mark. Well, in a crowded metropolis constantly changing, this development is one of the contrasts of a city of many contrasts. There is the good and the bad, the ugly and the beautiful.

We find many changes. It has been four years since we last visited here. Then heavy industry was just beginning to assert itself. Now it is fully rooted. We of the Midwest talk of decentralization in the belief it may bring plants to us from the older industrialized areas but the influx here from the eastern seaboard is startling. Hills which four years ago were grim and brown in their bareness have been transformed into solid residential sections, thousands upon thousands of homes. But more about that later. California simply would not be itself without a certain amount of "Bullifornia"—as Hyde Street describes it. But it seems to get results.

United Fruit Suit Was Not On Spur Of Moment

WASHINGTON — The question of whether the Justice Department should bring a monopoly suit against the United Fruit Company during the Guatemalan revolt went all the way up to the cabinet before a decision was reached.

Inside fact is that the suit was begun a long time ago by Assistant Attorney General Graham Morrison, and when Attorney General Brownell took over, United Fruit lawyers remarked: "This is some of that nonsense of the Democrats and should be tossed out immediately."

However, Eisenhower's new trustbuster, Judge Stanley N. Barnes, decided differently. It took him about 30 minutes to decide that there was a definite case against United Fruit for its banana monopoly in Central America. When he took up the case with the new attorney general, however, Brownell was cautious.

"Talk to the United Fruit lawyers about it before you file suit," he advised. "Hear their side of the story first."

Brownell was advised by subordinates that it was not Justice Department policy to confer with offending parties when the government had an airtight case. Nevertheless, in deference to Brownell's instructions, intermittent conferences took place between United Fruit attorneys and the antitrust division for about a year.

This was what delayed action until about the time of the Guatemalan revolt. It was then that the case was finally sent to President Eisenhower himself. He in turn took it up in a cabinet meeting.

Secretary of State Dulles was all for the suit. He felt it would show the United States was not working for United Fruit alone, but championed smaller companies in Latin America.

Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson, however, was opposed. Once head of the biggest corporation in America, General Motors, Wilson didn't like the idea of an antitrust suit against United Fruit.

However, it was Wilson's opposition, according to White House aides, that decided President Eisenhower to go ahead. He doesn't by any means always do just the opposite of what Wilson recommends; but in this case, Wilson's arguments seemed to convince like that the Justice Department was right.

Walter Winchell is helping peddle the yarn that every anti-McCarthy newspaper in the U.S.A. has someone on the editorial staff placed there by Communists. . . . When Winston Churchill was entertained by the National Press Club, the only distinguished speaker who got no applause when introduced was Adm. Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. . . . Sen. Schoepel of the great farming state of Kansas and a member of the Agricultural Committee switched his vote on the farm bill in mid-stream.

played again for the first time in too many years the private game of guessing about the people who went past, or paused for the light to change, or stopped to peer into a window. That sallow youth with the loose clothes, the built-in sneer and the cigaret hanging limply from a corner of his mouth, for instance. You know from a quick glance that he considers himself a hard character, a tough guy, and you wonder if anyone could tell him the misery that life reserves for his kind of a tough guy.

You just start to build up a story around him, and an old lady distracts you. Her clothes are neat and clean, but threadbare, yet her shoulders are straight for all her age, and there is a remnant of beauty in her face. Her hair is piled high in the fashion of years ago, and there is one of those little black ribbons around her throat. A one-time heiress come to misfortune? You wonder about the gaiety she has known, and the heartbreak. You don't know her, but somehow you're proud of her just the same.

And look! Coming around the corner is a whole family—the yellow is probably a factory worker, you think. His wife is stout, and the smile wrinkles show the 'ind she is. The kids are having a lot of fun, but the mother, obviously—let's see, how many of 'em are there? One, two, three, four.

Somebody taps you on the shoulder and says, "Hi! Been waiting long?"

You're sorry the half hour is gone. Loafing time is over. Have to do it again sometime—

Ike's Record Viewed By GOP Governors

BOLTON LANDING, N. Y.—A certain tension, which in the case of Gov. Dewey of New York graduates into acerbity, pervades this 46th annual governors' conference here.

This is an election year and it marks the expiration of the terms of 25 of the Republican governors who two summers ago triumphed over pro-Dewey President Eisenhower. Now the Eisenhower record is the issue and deeply important to them and their state machines. The President's backers are not quite as sure of his continued hold on the people as they profess to be. Some of them, as Gov. Thornton of Colorado, while plugging hard for the President, are saying frankly that the people have doubts about the Republican party.

The Democrats think this is fine, but they are afraid of over-confidence and are privately restrained in their comments. One or two believe things are not as rosy for them as Washington has been hearing.

Technically the Democrats are better placed for the governor's races. Only 11 are up, mostly southern. They feel this will give them an advantage in winning control of Congress.

Reporters have never found Gov. Dewey precisely a ray of sunshine in their drab lives. His extra sharpness possibly stems this year from the necessity of making hard choices about his future.

The governor is tired of Albany and eager to enter the practice of law both for a change and to build his personal fortune. He believes that in Sen. Irving Ives, his party has a strong and worthy candidate for governor.

But with peculiar thoughtlessness, New York Democrats seem bent on putting into the governor's race the inheritor of the famous name that Mr. Dewey resents. He is not so bitter even about Mr.

Truman; for the 1948 debacle he has found scapegoats in his own party.

It would be galling to Dewey, so long the successful governor of the country's richest and most populous state, to turn it over to Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. He honestly feels "the boy hasn't earned it," an opinion in which he is not alone with other Republicans.

But nobody is able to say positively that Franklin Jr. won't do as well as Bob Wagner Jr., who was elected mayor easily after years of being downgraded as amiable but incompetent by the Dewey forces.

Franklin Jr., currently in the House where his performance has been something less than dazzling, has the temerity to insist he can beat either Ives or Dewey. He actually seems to believe it—in itself a challenge.

The President has cancelled a scheduled appearance here because of the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Milton Eisenhower. Vice President Nixon, as usual, will fill in. The President has also dis-McKay to the scene to defend his power policies, an indication that they have caused dismay in some GOP quarters.

McKay said he would not discuss the controversial Eisenhower proposal for a private power combine in the TVA area to be financed by way of the Atomic Energy Commission's contracting power. Interior, he said firmly, was not involved.

The farm issue is also giving farm state governors trouble. The Eisenhower-Benson program is popular in industrial areas where it is only one of many issues affecting political opinion. In the great basic crop-producing areas, its popularity remains to be demonstrated in a way reassuring to the politicians who must run there.

Garden Glances With The Moon

Dawn came this morning with July's waxing moon in the flexed, fiery and very barren sign, Sagittarius. About 30 minutes before midnight tonight, it will enter the movable, earthy, dry and semi-fruitful sign, Capricorn.

Thursday evening at 6:25 third lunar quarter will begin. Then July's moon waxes no more but begins this very moment to decrease in light and power. And the gardener turns again to planting things that produce their yield in the soil, as carrots, beets, etc.; also to transplanting iris that their roots may be many and their rhizomes healthy to store food and moisture for next year's bountiful bloom.

Friday morning at 7:16 the waning moon will enter the fixed, airy and barren sign, Aquarius. Then Sunday at 30 minutes past midday, it will enter the flexed, watery and fruitful sign, Pisces. So much for the moon's signs. Use them as you think best.

Our picture today gives you a glimpse of one of my favorite summer-blooming perennials. It is one of many colorful and aromatic herbs called "Monarda" after the Spanish physician and botanist, Mondardes (1493-1588). One of its blooms are a delicate rosy-pink and it is called "Crostway Pink." It was given me only last summer and blends beautifully with M. rubra which I've grown for years.

The leaves of all Monardas when crushed or even slightly brushed by hand emit a delightful fragrance resembling that of Citrus Bergamia, a small spiny tree with sour thin-skinned fruit grown in Europe for centuries for its essential oil and perfume,

Crostway pink . . . a fragrant herb of the Monarda family and thus are sometimes called Bergamot. However, their most appropriate name, I think, is "Bee Balm" for the bees dearly love each flower be it pink, scarlet, ruby or purple, and spend many hours in our garden flitting from one fragrant, colorful flower to another.

The scarlet one, didyma (M. coccinea), often called Oswega Tea in old herbals, is seen most frequently in gardens but it does not grow so tall as the one pictured nor as rubra or the purple one. Nor does its scarlet hue blend so well with other flowers in one's garden as rubra. We also have a wilding from the Ozarks called "Bradburiana" which is about one foot in height, flower shell-pink with small garnet dots, and it blooms first of all in June. The one growing wild along our roadsides west to Mc-

Cook is called horse-mint, with its strong-smelling lavender blooms that are formed exactly like our garden-grown ones. Monardas are equally at home in partial shade or sun and that too, is the reason I'm so fond of them in my garden. Like all of the mint family, they have shallow roots so when the days are hot and dry, one must see that they have sufficient moisture.

One schedule this week end for attendance in the third annual hemerocallis show to be presented by the Omaha Hemerocallis Society. It will be held Sunday, July 18, from noon until 6:30 p.m. at the Benson Park Pavilion at 72nd Street and Military Avenue.

Also on Sunday afternoon will be the fifth annual show by the Midwest Gladiolus Society, and it will be presented at Beatrice at the municipal auditorium.

Ft. Robinson

Alliance, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I attended the Western Nebraska Chamber of Commerce meeting at Crawford on July 8. This organization represents towns from Sidney to Broken Bow and Valentine. It has worked sincerely and like a gentleman on Ft. Robinson and the problems there.

I do not think the University of Nebraska has been sympathetic to this organization. Ranchers donated the university cattle when the beef experiment station was started and Crawford worked with the university with courtesy and co-operation.

Harold J. Cook, Agate geologist and son of a pioneer historian, spoke at the meeting. Harold has worked many times on fossils with the University of Nebraska, and I know he is friendly to the university. So am I. Still, there may be faults in the university that need a little correction.

Mr. Cook stated: "Ft. Robinson is a fertile field for geologists and paleontologists and western Nebraska geological history is fairly well unbroken for study for 60 million years. Concessions and other income would make Ft. Robinson a paying proposition to the state as a recreational and historic attraction. I am stunned to learn in Lincoln that the University of Nebraska is opposing transfer of the fort to state ownership."

The Fish, Game and Parks Commission or the State Historical Society could easily make Ft. Robinson a monument to pioneer and Indian lore history without harming the beef experiment activities. I am writing Lloyd Pipher, WNUCC president, at Crawford for full information and will present it to the voters in the Sixth District in the coming campaign for regent of the university.

The university is a good school but sometimes it gets a little big for its "britches" and a good spanking won't hurt its prestige. Fundamentally professors are just people and they throw curve balls once in awhile just like farmers, businessmen, housewives and others. The university freely suggests and offers advice—maybe it could use a little suggestion and advice.

Hebron, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: On June 25 Mr. J. J. Gliese had a letter in The Star defending Joe McCarthy. It drew two letters of disagreement with the method used by McCarthy. On July 6 Mr. Gliese submitted a reply to his critics and enumerated 24 charges of misconduct that took place during the previous administration.

Question: Was you there, Charlie? To know that all 24 of those charges were true, one would have to be where all the misconduct occurred. I would judge that Mr. Gliese is a young man just starting his political affiliation with the Republican party, and is so warped in his thinking that everything the Republicans do is all right and there is no good in anything the Democrats do. That is a very bad rut for a young man to get in.

He calls attention to the fact that 37 Democrats voted to give Tidelands oil to the four coastal states. I would like to call attention to the fact that there are

POSTCARD

I spent a good deal of time in New England eating lobster. I ate it boiled and broiled and buttered. Cape Cod fashion—which is only tails and claws. And my fashion which includes liver and coral and winds up sucking hopefully at the little tubular claws.

Last year, some of the players at the summer theater at Sturbridge, Mass., defected. They went over to Falmouth on Cape Cod and started the Higfield Theater.

The Sturbridge Players were not so hurt by the loss of the players. What boiled them like a lobster was the Higfield group lured away Mr. Alban Giroux, a French chef who had been cooking for Sturbridge for five years.

It was like having your All-American halfback transfer to another college.

Food is respected in New England and not at all like the tasteless New England boiled dinner on the menus along the great American highways.

The Public House in Sturbridge is undoubtedly one of the most attractive and finest restaurants in America. An equal, especially in the matter of broiled lobster, is the ancient Wiggins Tavern in Northampton. "The best lobster in the world," said Peter Boggs of Falmouth, "is in Edgartown in Martha's Vineyard."

Mr. Boggs was so emphatic on the point that he took me over on his fishing boat, the Bluefish, just to prove it.

It is a sparkling blue ride from Falmouth to Martha's Vineyard. We had cocktails aboard while the Bluefish ate up an hour of seawater.

The Edgartown Cafe, a block from the wharf, looked like any quick order restaurant. I went out in the kitchen to see the chef. He said the secret of broiling lobster was to have hot fire on both sides. He showed me the range. There was a bank of glowing charcoal on the bottom and another on top. In between was a grill arrangement.

The chef went into the cold box and grabbed six chilly lobsters who were beating their claws together to keep warm. He took a cleaver. Whack! Whack! He split them down the middle but not quite through.

He opened the halves and spread them with butter and a bread crumb mixture. He snapped a grill arrangement on them that held them flat and popped them between the charcoal. About 20 minutes he said, "You should eat a couple of dozen steamer clams while you wait," he said. "Steamer clams and fresh corn."

The lobster came in red and hot. With the bread crumbs browned and a little cup of hot melted butter to dip the lobster in. As Mr. Boggs said, it was nothing short of sensational.

"And I have eaten lobster in '21' and everywhere on the cape. This is the best," he said. Mr. Boggs being a Cape Codder eats only the tail and claws. He does not fool around with the rest of the shell.

On another day, Mrs. Boggs cooked lobster Cape Cod fashion. And in my opinion, this is the greatest lobster in the world.

It is very simple. She simply heated up a great pot of water and added salt. (Some Cape Codders insist on seawater. And some add a bay leaf.) She threw the lobsters in alive. She boiled them 20 minutes and served them just like that. Unadorned. No stuffing. Just a dish of melted butter and a couple of big pans on the floor.

The lobsters are juicy and spurt all over and you must empty your plate once in awhile of juice and shell.

It is messier than eating fried chicken. And, if you want one naturalized Cape Codder's opinion, twice as good.

Nebraska Marine Sweetheart Entry Deadline July 17

A Nebraska girl will be named Sweetheart of the Cornhusker Platoon of the Midwest Marine Company.

That's the word from M/Sgt. Roger Lohsen, Lincoln recruiter, who announced that the deadline for the contest entries is July 17th. The winner will be announced the following week.

Nebraska's representative will compete with other girls from the area for the Midwest Company title.

Judging will be done by a Hollywood studio representative and the winners will receive prizes plus round trip tickets to Omaha for the ceremonies in connection with the enlistment of the Midwest Company.

Any girl over 18 years of age may enter by submitting a snapshot of herself to the Marine Corps recruiting office at Fort Omaha, Neb.

The Midwest Marine Company will be sworn in together at Omaha July 30th, travel to San Diego, Calif., for "boot camp" and return home on leave following their recruit training.

3 Car Accessory Thefts Reported

Three thefts of accessories from automobiles have been reported to the sheriff's office over the week end.

Gayle Worth of 1800 Hartley said a manifold, spot light, tire and rim, and tripod jack were taken from his car while parked at his residence.

Removal of another spot light and a radio was attempted, he said. Value of equipment was $85.

Two fender skirts, valued at $18, were taken from the car of Lt. Glenn Welsh of the Lincoln Air Force Base while it was parked at Capitol Beach.

Phil Reider of 1327 1/2 C said two hubcaps were taken from his car while it was parked at the Capitol Beach auto races.

Mrs. Duane Hall and children of Sterling, Kan., have returned to their home after a brief visit with Mrs. Hall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pollock of Ulysses.

THE WAY MY FAMILY LIKES IT

Those in the neighborhood of 2808 Stratford have a treat ahead of them if they have not yet met Mrs. John H. Davis, who, with her husband and her son, Jack, have moved to Lincoln from Maywood, Calif. Jack, who has just completed his freshman year at Pepperdine College, will pursue his course of study in engineering at the University of Nebraska this summer.

While chatting with Mrs. Davis, we discovered she has not only a flair for interior decorating, but also holds her own in the kitchen. The Davises like Mexican cooking particularly since Mrs. Davis' mother formerly lived there and she spent last summer in Mexico. Her recipe for "Italian Delight" can be served with equal appeal and ease from a buffet table or from the campfire, as was frequently done in the Davis summer cabin near Arrowhead, Calif.

ITALIAN DELIGHT
8 to 10 generous helpings
Sauté 1 medium onion, 1

pepper, and 1 garlic bud, all finely chopped, in 2 T. corn oil until transparent. Turn the flame up to "high" and drop in 1 lb. ground chuck, and ½ lb. ground pork or sausage. Cook until meat loses its color and add 16 oz. can tomato paste and the contents of 1 can of tomato soup, with 2 soup-cans of water. Season with salt and pepper to taste and add 1 can whole kernel corn.

Boil water sufficiently to cook 12 oz. broad noodles and grate about 1 lb. sharp cheddar cheese. By this time, the sauce mixture is ready to be combined, in layers, in a large casserole with a tight fitting cover, with the cooked noodles, and cheese in about three layers, ending with a layer of cheese.

About 45 min. before dinner is to be served, or the next day, preferably, pop the casserole into a 350 degree oven. Serve with the traditional Italian bread and salad and a light, refreshing dessert. More iced coffee, anyone?

Sunday Afternoon Bride

Miss Nancy Fahrbruch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Fahrbruch of Crete, became the bride of Jacob Kahler, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Kahler, at a 4 o'clock ceremony Sunday afternoon, July 11, at the Immanuel Lutheran Church. The Rev. William J. Roessler read the lines of the service against a background of candles burning seven-branched candelabra and basket arrangements of yellow gladioli.

As the candles were lighted by Miss Marilyn Johns and Miss Dorothy Williamson, Ivan Sundman, organist, played a prelude of wedding music and also accompanied Earle Flynn, vocalist, who sang.

Miss Doris Ann Bohl, the maid of honor in yellow, and Miss Mary Lou Billiar and Miss Georgia Lee Billiar, the bridesmaids in lilac, wore alike frocks of net over tulle and full skirts. They wore frock-toned bandeaux and carried contrasting bouquets of lilac and yellow carnations. Miss Chrissie Hayes and Miss Audrey Kahler were the flower girls and were frocked in pale yellow.

The bride chose for her wedding a white gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over tulle. The lace basque featured a sweetheart neckline outlined with seed pearls and opalescent paillettes, and the full skirt ended in a chapel train. A heart-shaped half-hat decorated with seed pearls held her double veil of imported illusion and she carried a white Bible marked with a lavender orchid.

Edward Liekam was the best man and Charles Smith and Edward Schneider were the ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Welfare Society Hall in Crete, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado and Yellowstone Park. For traveling, the bride wore a print frock with white accessories.

They will make their home in Lincoln after July 23.

Betrothal In The News

THIS MORNING we have some very interesting news of a betrothal—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stephenson Bergquist are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Jane Rosamond, to Tom Leonard Larsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Peter Larsen.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Bergquist is attending the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Delta Gamma and Mr. Larsen is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. He will receive his commission as a Lieutenant in the Air Force later this month and will then report to Houston, Tex.

We Hear That

Returning Monday from a visit to the Pacific northwest and Alaska, were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brokaw. Mr. Brokaw was a delegate to Rotary International Convention in June. They visited relatives in Everett, Wash., before taking a steamship to Alaska.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Soukup Jr., are the parents of a daughter, Mariliss Suzanne, born Friday at Bryan Memorial Hospital. The paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Soukup Sr., former Lincoln residents, now live in Alhambra, Calif. Mrs. Soukup, the former Elouise Hoff, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Hoff, Hastings. Mariliss Suzanne has a brother, Leo III.

Mrs. Duane Hall and children of Sterling, Kan., have returned to their home after a brief visit with Mrs. Hall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pollock of Ulisses.

THE WAY MY FAMILY LIKES IT

Those in the neighborhood of 2808 Stratford have a treat ahead of them if they have not yet met Mrs. John H. Davis, who, with her husband and her son, Jack, have moved to Lincoln from Maywood, Calif. Jack, who has just completed his freshman year at Pepperdine College, will pursue his course of study in engineering at the University of Nebraska this summer.

While chatting with Mrs. Davis, we discovered she has not only a flair for interior decorating, but also holds her own in the kitchen. The Davises like Mexican cooking particularly since Mrs. Davis' mother formerly lived there and she spent last summer in Mexico. Her recipe for "Italian Delight" can be served with equal appeal and ease from a buffet table or from the campfire, as was frequently done in the Davis summer cabin near Arrowhead, Calif.

ITALIAN DELIGHT
8 to 10 generous helpings
Saute 1 medium onion, 1

pepper, and 1 garlic bud, all finely chopped, in 2 T. corn oil until transparent. Turn the flame up to "high" and drop in 1 lb. ground chuck, and 1/2 lb. ground pork or sausage. Cook until meat loses its color and add 16 oz. can tomato paste and the contents of 1 can of tomato soup, with 2 soup-cans of water. Season with salt and pepper to taste and add 1 can whole kernel corn.

Boil water sufficiently to cook 12 oz. brood noodles and grate about 1 lb. sharp cheddar cheese. By this time, the sauce mixture is ready to be combined, in layers, in a large casserole with a tight fitting cover, with the cooked noodles, and cheese in about three layers, ending with a layer of cheese.

About 45 min. before dinner is to be served, pop the casserole into a 350 degree oven. Serve with the traditional Italian bread and salad and a light, refreshing dessert. More iced coffee, anyone?

Sunday Afternoon Bride

Miss Nancy Fahrbruch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Fahrbruch of Crete, became the bride of Jacob Kahler, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Kahler, at a 4 o'clock ceremony Sunday afternoon, July 11, at the Immanuel Lutheran Church. The Rev. William J. Roesler read the lines of the service against a background of candles burning seven-branched candelabra and basket arrangements of yellow gladioli.

As the candles were lighted by Miss Marilyn Johns and Miss Dorothy Williamson, Ivan Sunderman, organist, played a prelude of wedding music and also accompanied Earle Flynn, vocalist, who sang.

Miss Doris Ann Bohl, the maid of honor in yellow, and Miss Mary Lou Billiar and Miss Georgia Lee Billiar, the bridesmaids in lilac, wore alike frocks of net over tulle, designed with strapless bodices and full skirts. They wore frock-toned bandeaus and carried contrasting bouquets of lilac and yellow carnations. Miss Chrissie Hayes and Miss Audrey Kahler were the flower girls and were frocked in pale yellow.

The bride chose for her wedding a white gown of Chantilly-type lace and tulle over taffeta. The lace basque featured a sweetheart neckline outlined with seed pearls and opalescent paillettes, and the full skirt ended in a chapel train. A heart-shaped half-hat decorated with seed pearls held her double veil of imported illusion and she carried a white Bible marked with a lavender orchid.

Edward Liekam was the best man and Charles Smith and Edward Schneider were the ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Welfare Society Hall in Crete, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado and Yellowstone Park. For traveling, the bride wore a print frock with white accessories. They will make their home in Lincoln after July 23.

House Debate Flares Over Private Utility-TVA Power Negotiations

Rep. Phillips Defends Ike's 'Dynamite' Order To AEC

WASHINGTON (U) — Brisk debate broke out in the House Monday over President Eisenhower's controversial directive to the Atomic Energy Commission to negotiate a private utility contract for power for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The argument started when Rep. Phillips (R-Calif.) delivered a speech defending the presidential order. His remarks sparked opposition from several foes of the private power contract.

Phillips, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee which handles funds for both AEC and TVA, said the proposed private power contract would cost the government, all things considered, no more than power supplied by TVA.

Rep. Hoffield (D-Calif.), a member of the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee, disputed Phillips' statement. He said the proposal would cost the government $3,685,000 more a year than TVA power would cost.

Under the presidential directive, AEC would negotiate a contract with Middle South Utilities, Inc., and the Southern Co. for 600,000 kilowatts of power to be delivered to TVA near Memphis.

TVA would distribute this power to industrial and residential consumers in the Memphis area, and would continue to furnish a like amount of power to the atomic plant at Paducah. The power would be produced at a plant the two utilities companies, known as the Dixon-Yates group, would build at West Memphis, Ark.

Rep. Evins (D-Tenn.) told the House that under the proposed contract TVA would have to build a nine-million-dollar transmission line to get the power from the Arkansas plant across the Mississippi River.

Evins, backed up by Rep. Jones

(D-Ala.) and Rep. Murray (D-Tenn.), asked if AEC has authority to enter a contract for power to be supplied to TVA.

Hoffield declared that in his opinion the AEC does not have such power and "the President is out on a limb."

Hoover Disputes Adlai's Charges On Power Stand

EUGENE, Ore. (U) — Herbert Hoover took issue with Adlai Stevenson Monday, the former President denying that he ever said the federal government should get out of the electric power business.

Hoover said that Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, in a speech here Saturday was "led into three grave misstatements of fact or implication in respect to myself."

The ex-President said that to straighten these out he wanted it known that 1. he did not veto the first multiple-purpose dam for hydroelectric power; 2. he vetoed the Norris dam bill only because there was not adequate protection for the Treasury; and 3. he never said the government should get out of the electric power business.

Stevenson spoke at a Democratic rally here, saying that the present administration was going back to the Hoover power policies of 1931. At the time of the speech Hoover was a few miles away on a fishing trip. He left by plane for San Francisco after taking issue with Stevenson in an interview.

The ex-President said, "I have advocated multiple-purpose dams when justified for the past 30 years. Further I had a large part in bringing about the one almost completed during my administration . . . the first and largest multiple purpose dam in our country. This was the Hoover Dam on the Colorado."

House Debate Flares Over Private Utility-TVA Power Negotiations

Rep. Phillips Defends Ike's 'Dynamite' Order To AEC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brisk debate broke out in the House Monday over President Eisenhower's controversial directive to the Atomic Energy Commission to negotiate a private utility contract for power for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The argument started when Rep. Phillips (R-Calif.) delivered a speech defending the presidential order. His remarks sparked opposition from several foes of the private power contract.

Phillips, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee which handles funds for both AEC and TVA, said the proposed private power contract would cost the government, all things considered, no more than power supplied by TVA.

Rep. Holtfield (D-Calif.), a member of the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee, disputed Phillips' statement. He said the proposal would cost the government $3,685,000 more a year than TVA power would cost.

Under the presidential directive, AEC would negotiate a contract with Middle South Utilities, Inc., and the Southern Co., for 600,000 kilowatts of power to be delivered to TVA near Memphis.

TVA would distribute this power to industrial and residential consumers in the Memphis area, and would continue to furnish a like amount of power to the atomic plant at Paducah. The power would be produced at a plant the two utilities companies, known as the Dixon-Yates group, would build at West Memphis, Ark.

Rep. Evans (D-Tenn.) told the House that under the proposed contract TVA would have to build a nine-million-dollar transmission line to get the power from the Arkansas plant across the Mississippi River.

Evans, backed up by Rep. Jones

(D-Ala.) and Rep. Murray (D-Tenn.), asked if AEC has authority to enter a contract for power to be supplied to TVA.

Holtfield declared that in his opinion the AEC does not have such power and "the President is out on a limb."

Hoover Disputes Adlai's Charges On Power Stand

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Herbert Hoover took issue with Adlai Stevenson Monday, the former President denying that he ever said the federal government should get out of the electric power business.

Hoover said that Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, in a speech here Saturday was "led into three grave misstatements of fact or implication in respect to myself."

The ex-President said that to straighten these out he wanted it known that 1. he did not veto the first multiple-purpose dam for hydroelectric power; 2. he vetoed the Norris dam bill only because there was not adequate protection for the Treasury; and 3. he never said the government should get out of the electric power business.

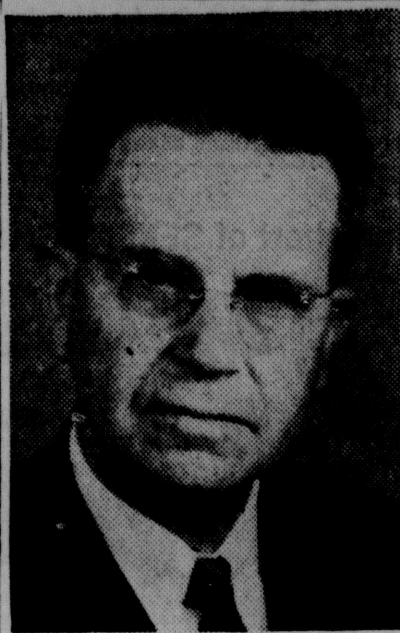

Stevenson spoke at a Democratic rally here, saying that the present administration was going back to the Hoover power policies of 1931. At the time of the speech Hoover was a few miles away on a fishing trip. He left by plane for San Francisco after taking issue with Stevenson in an interview.

The ex-President said, "I have advocated multiple-purpose dams when justified for the past 30 years. Further I had a large part in bringing about the one almost completed during my administration . . . the first and largest multiple purpose dam in our country. This was the Hoover Dam on the Colorado."

North Platte R. Irrigation Canals Closed

Stream Is Lowest Ever

BRIDGEPORT, Neb. (P)—Fred Klietsch, superintendent of the State Irrigation Office here, said Monday he had closed a number of canals from Sutherland west to the state line which depend on the natural flow of the North Platte River for all of their irrigation water.

The canals serve around 40,000 acres. Principal canals closed are the Mitchell Canal, the Paxton-Hershey Canal and the Keith-Lincoln County Canal.

Klietsch said the North Platte River flow at present is the lowest on record. The July 10 reading at Bridgeport was 90 second feet. In 1934, the second lowest year, the reading on the same day was 194 second feet, and the daily average for the years 1942-51 for July was 960 second feet.

After 94 Rights Closed
Klietsch said all canals with water rights which do not pre-cede Feb. 2, 1894, have been closed in addition to the Mitchell Canal, whose water right was granted in 1890. The Mitchell Canal is on the state line and comes under the 1945 Supreme Court decree which allocated water to Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska.

Klietsch said canals below Sutherland are using "practically all storage water" from Kingsley Reservoir, which he described as having adequate storage.

He said the Pathfinder Reservoir in Wyoming, which serves the North Platte Valley district, probably will be out of storage water at the end of the current season.

2 Power Districts Have Enough Water

HASTINGS, Neb. (P)—The Central Nebraska and Platte Valley Public Power Districts have enough water to meet their needs through this season, but the water shortage which began a year ago still is acute, their first joint report said Monday.

The report came out of a meeting of staffs of the two districts under a recently signed co-operative management agreement covering Nebraska's largest water resource development project.

The report pointed out, however, that although the two districts will be able to meet all their contracts to the end of the current irrigation season, the natural flow of the Platte River is low and many canals depending on the river for their supply of irrigation water will experience a shortage.

Storage in Lake McConaughy at the start of the irrigation season was 1,392,000 acre feet, about a quarter of a million acre feet short of last spring's total.

Precipitation in the South Platte River Basin also has been below normal, the report said.

The report set up these rules for future operations of the two districts:

Hold water releases from Lake McConaughy and Sutherland Reservoir to the minimum required for irrigation and power during the irrigation season and to the minimum required for power outside the irrigation season.

Reserve as much storage space in Sutherland Reservoir as possible for storing South Platte River runoff, even though prospects of such runoff are small.

Encourage all ditch operators and irrigators to use all water sparingly and economically.

Western Chambers Now Favor Sale Of State School Land

CRAWFORD, Neb. (P)—The Western Nebraska United Chambers of Commerce has reversed its stand on state-owned school lands and now favors sale of the property.

The WNUCC endorsed a resolution urging sale of all school lands when the present leases expire, or sooner if lessees desire.

The reversal of opinion was due chiefly to failure of a petition which would have given Nebraskans a chance to vote on a new method of distributing school land revenue.

The petitions asked that school

lease income be districted in the counties where it originated.

Directors of the WNUCC said sale of the lands would eliminate payment of "exorbitant" bonuses and place the lands on tax rolls in their home counties.

The canals serve around 40,000 acres. Principal canals closed are the Mitchell Canal, the Paxton-Hershey Canal and the Keith-Lincoln County Canal.

Precipitation in the South Platte River Basin also has been below normal, the report said.

The report set up these rules for future operations of the two districts:

- Hold water releases from Lake McConaughy and Sutherland Reservoir to the minimum required for irrigation and power during the irrigation season and to the minimum required for power outside the irrigation season.

- Reserve as much storage space in Sutherland Reservoir as possible for storing South Platte River runoff, even though prospects of such runoff are small.
- Encourage all ditch operators and irrigators to use all water sparingly and economically.

Sargent Irrigation Appropriations Okayed By Group

WASHINGTON (P)—Initial appropriations for five irrigation districts have been approved by the House Interior Appropriations Subcommittee.

Congressmen from the states involved told a reporter Monday that appropriations for first year construction were approved as follows:

Intemperate rains on the 16th and 17 caused severe flooding along the Nemaha and the Big Blue River rose to bankfull.

Other weather highlights of the month included damaging hailstorms affecting Cheyenne, Deuel, Banner and Kimball Counties and an area near Tilden, and tornadoes in the Hyannis, Stanton and Pender areas.

Western Chambers Now Favor Sale Of State School Land

CRAWFORD, Neb. (P)—The Western Nebraska United Chambers of Commerce has reversed its stand on state-owned school lands and now favors sale of the property.

The WNUCC endorsed a resolution urging sale of all school lands when the present leases expire, or sooner if lessees desire.

The reversal of opinion was due chiefly to failure of a petition which would have given Nebraska a chance to vote on a new method of distributing school land revenue.

The petitions asked that school

lease income be districted in the counties where it originated.

Directors of the WNUCC said sale of the lands would eliminate payment of "exorbitant" bonuses and place the lands on tax rolls in their home counties.

The Firing Line

Sherman Field will be the scene of high decision the next 10 nights.

The Lincoln Chiefs, flexing their muscles over a successful recent road swing, will be on the premises against such worthy opposition as Sioux City, Omaha, Wichita, Denver and Colorado Springs.

Amazing thing about these Chiefs. Everytime you get set to count them out, they bounce back and begin making first-division noises.

General Manager Bill Herring is to be complimented for adding four pitchers and an infielder when fresh talent is hard to get.

Skipper Whitey Wietelmann gets a hearty backlash for leading his team "Up" again after a series of injury, semi-pro raids and other setbacks that would discourage the normal pilot.

What the Chiefs do these next 10 nights will go a long way toward deciding where they'll wind up in the final Western League standings.

How well you fans turn out to watch this interesting crew will decide whether Lincoln will have Western League baseball next year.

Besides, there is a cooler spot in Lincoln to spend these sweltering summer nights?

(One of Nebraska's newest clubs, the Prairie Bowmen, is on parade here today. The club area includes a poem by one of the members, Jim Lund.)

Down along the Salt Creek Valley Out beyond the city street. The merry Prairie Bowmen With their bows and arrows meet.

To engage in competition For the honors of the day And enjoy the fellowship Of each other while at play.

From one target to the other As they roam among the trees They aim straight at the bullseye But they mostly hit the breeze.

There's no joy that lingers longer Than the Prairie Bowmen know There's no tie that binds them stronger Than a twanging hunting bow.

Till the sun and moon are darkened And the stars refuse to shine again Will fascinating archery Enchant the hearts of men.

The Prairie Bowmen is a new club to Nebraska—a new sport in this area. Compared with target archery, field archery is new to this country but the sport has grown with amazing rapidity.

It has grown from a few adventuresome people who wanted to use the bow and arrow in a different way, to thousands of enthusiasts. The national organization, The National Field Archery Association, is composed of hundreds of chartered clubs throughout the United States and publishes its own magazine, ARCHERY.

The primary purpose of the national organization is to sponsor "shoots" for hunting practice and the secondary purpose is to provide competition in these "shoots" to further the sport of field archery. Therefore, field archery ranges are laid out in such a manner as to simulate hunting conditions.

Targets range in distance from 20 feet to 80 yards with up-hill and down-hill shots. There are level shots in the open and shots between trees and over bushes. This, you can see, differs considerably from the familiar target archery range.

In February of this year a meeting of local archers was called and the Prairie Bowmen Club was born. At the first meeting election of officers was held with the following being elected to serve for one year:

President—Bob Ellis. Vice President—Don Hintz. Secretary-Treasurer—Jim Lund. Secretary-Treasurer, Jim Lund, has been interested in archery for many years and is well known in Lincoln as he operated a target range here prior to World War II.

At a later meeting two Directors, Lyle Young and Dick Koch,

Bears Beat Pueblo, 2-1, To Sweep Series

PUEBLO, Colo. (P) — Denver's Chuck Garmon bested Pueblo's George Barker in a tight pitching duel here Monday night to give the Western League-leading Bears a 2-1 victory and a sweep of the three-game series.

Sherman Field will be the scene of high decision the next 10 nights.

The Lincoln Chiefs, flexing their muscles over a successful recent road swing, will be on the premises against such worthy opposition as Sioux City, Omaha, Wichita, Denver and Colorado Springs.

Amazing thing about these Chiefs. Everytime you get set to count them out, they bounce back and begin making first-division noises.

General Manager Bill Herring is to be complimented for adding four pitchers and an infielder when fresh talent is hard to get.

Skipper Whitey Wietelmann gets a hearty backslap for getting his team "Up" again after a series of injury, semi-pro raids and other setbacks that would discourage the normal pilot.

What the Chiefs do these next 10 nights will go a long way toward deciding where they'll wind up in the final Western League standings.

How well you fans turn out to watch this interesting crew will decide whether Lincoln will have Western League baseball next year.

Besides, where is there a cooler spot in Lincoln to spend these sweltering summer nights?

(One of Nebraska's newest clubs, the Prairie Bowmen, is on parade here today. The column even includes a poem by one of the members, Jim Lund.)

Down along the Salt Creek Valley Out beyond the noisy street,
The merry Prairie Bowmen With their bows and arrows meet.

To engage in competition For the honors of the day
And enjoy the fellowship Of each other while at play.

From one target to the other As they roam among the trees
They aim straight at the bullseye But they mostly hit the breeze.

There's no joy that lingers longer Than the Prairie Bowmen know
There's no tie that binds them stronger Than a twanging hunting bow.

Till the sun and moon are darkened And the stars refuse to shine again
Will fascinating archery Enchant the hearts of men.

The Prairie Bowmen is a new club to Nebraska—a new sport in this area. Compared with target archery, field archery is new to this country but the sport has grown with amazing rapidity.

It has grown from a few adventuresome people who wanted to use the bow and arrow in a different way, to thousands of enthusiasts. The national organization, The National Field Archery Association, is composed of hundreds of chartered clubs throughout the United States and publishes its own magazine, ARCHERY.

The primary purpose of the national organization is to sponsor "shoots" for hunting practice and the secondary purpose is to provide competition in these "shoots" to further the sport of field archery. Therefore, field archery ranges are laid out in such a manner as to simulate hunting conditions.

Targets range in distance from 20 feet to 80 yards with up-hill and down-hill shots. There are level shots in the open and shots between trees and over bushes. This, you can see, differs considerably from the familiar target archery range.

In February of this year a meeting of local archers was called and the Prairie Bowmen Club was born. At the first meeting election of officers was held with the following being elected to serve for one year:

President—Bob Ellis.
Vice President—Don Hintz
Secretary—Treasurer—Jim Lund
Secretary—Treasurer—Jim Lund, has been interested in archery for many years and is well known in Lincoln as he operated a target range here prior to World War II.

At a later meeting two Directors, Lyle Young and Dick Koch,

Bears Beat Pueblo, 2-1, To Sweep Series

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Denver's Chuck Garmon bested Pueblo's George Barker in a tight pitching duel here Monday night to give the Western League-leading Bears a 2-1 victory and a sweep of the three-game series.

Garmon scattered seven hits, never permitting more than one in any inning, and walked only two Dodgers as he chalked up his 11th victory in 14 decisions.

Pueblo's Barker did almost as well. He scattered nine hits and also walked two batters.

WISHING WELL By William J. Miller

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Adlai said at a banquet for dinner in the celebrity booth at a corner lunch wagon that the time is ripe for everything, including speckled apples, Democrats and neck bolts.

Between bites at a paper cup Adlai said the GOP promised us two thumbs in every pie, old age security while you are young enough to still enjoy it and louder snappers in bon-bons.

Iowa Plan Holds Key To Work

BOLTON LANDING, N.Y. (P) —Gov. Robert B. Crosby said Monday Nebraska is ready to build a cross-state toll highway if Iowa decides to go ahead with plans for one of its own.

The governor told a newsman he could give no estimate of the cost of a Nebraska superhighway and no prediction of what its route would be.

State officials are thinking in terms of a highway crossing the Missouri River from Iowa in the vicinity of Omaha and continuing to Nebraska's western border, Crosby said. A cross-Iowa road would in turn be linked with a proposed toll road between Chicago and Rock Island, Ill., he added.

Followed Others

Crosby made his remarks following a meeting with Gov. William S. Stratton of Illinois and Gov. William S. Beardsley of Iowa at the national governors conference. Raymond C. McGrath of Omaha, chairman of the Nebraska toll road authority, and L. N. Bass, Nebraska state highway engineer, also attended.

Crosby said Iowa officials expect to receive a report soon on the feasibility of building an east-west superhighway through their state. Nebraska's action would have to follow Iowa's lead, he explained.

The three governors agreed that in future there will be a complete exchange of information among them on plans for toll highway construction, Crosby reported.

In another inter-state hook-up on toll highways, Stratton told newsman that Illinois would cooperate with Missouri and Indiana on plans for a road between East St. Louis and the Indiana line.

Part of Illinois' 583-million-dollar project will be devoted to the highway, Stratton added.

In Lincoln, James Diesing, Crosby's administrative assistant, said the governor had telephoned to report "a very useful meeting" with "a complete exchange of information."

Mrs. Schule Rites To Be Wednesday

Her husband, Fred, died 15 years ago.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Hodgman-Splain chapel.

Surviving is a daughter, Mrs. Auguste Jennings of Lincoln.

Mrs. S. G. Lichty Dies Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Sadie G. Lichty, 76, of 1149 So. 17th, will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the grave in Morrill, Kan.

Nebraska Air National Guard Begins Training Saturday; Planes Borrowed

DES MOINES (P) — Using borrowed planes the 132nd wing, composed of air guard units of Iowa and Nebraska, will begin two weeks of field training at Casper, Wyo., next Saturday.

For 1,200 officers and airmen the maneuvers will be complicated by the fact that all of the wing's F-80 fighter planes are undergoing modification at Burbank, Calif.

However, Lt. Col. Robert Shetterly, commanding officer of the 132nd Fighter-Bomber Group stationed in Des Moines, made a hurried trip to Dallas last week to borrow some planes from the Texas air guard. Others are being borrowed from Colorado.

The 132nd wing is commanded by Lt. Col. Frank Berlin who farms near Woodward.

It includes the 124th fighter-bomber squadron at Des Moines; the 173rd at Lincoln, Neb., and the 174th at Sioux City.

"We always seem to have more pilots than planes," said Lt. Col. Roger W. Gilbert, wing executive officer, "and the fact that our planes are being overhauled complicates matters. But we'll get the job done."

There are 30 pilots stationed here, 18 at Sioux City and 21 at Lincoln. The majority of these have been checked out in jets and many are veterans of World War II and Korean War fighting.

The summer encampment will be devoted to sharpening their skill on air and ground gunnery and possibly some rocket firing.

Lincoln units of the 132nd Wing will have nearly 400 officers and men undergoing two-weeks field training at Casper, Wyo.

The main body of 350 men will board a special train Friday night for 12:05 a. m. Saturday departure from the Burlington depot. The group will arrive in Casper about 3 p. m. Saturday. Train commander will be Maj. Richard F. Gillen.

An advance detachment of 20 airmen, headed by Capt. John C. DePutron, will leave Tuesday to establish food service and living quarters for the Lincoln group at the Wyoming air base.

Lincoln's 173rd Fighter-Bomber Squadron is commanded by Lt. Col. Fred H. Bailey, Jr. Executive officer is Maj. J. R. Morgan Batten.

Commander of the 132nd Air Base Group, comprising the air base support squadrons for a wing, is Lt. Col. Donald E. Coy.

Wheeler County Tax Collection Is 100 Per Cent

State Auditor Ray C. Johnson said Monday Wheeler County for the third time has made a 100 per cent collection of personal taxes.

Wheeler County Attorney Arthur O. Ausenrod reported to Johnson that County Treasurer S. L. Westcott and Sheriff Arthur McLain have just completed the job of collecting all 1952 taxes.

Previous 100 per cent collections in Wheeler County were of 1945 and 1951 personal taxes.

Thirty-two distress warrants were issued by the treasurer and delivered to the sheriff last October in connection with the 1952 collection.

Of the 93 counties in the state, Wheeler is the only one ever to report 100 per cent collection, Johnson commented.
